Concerning the Selling of Books in Summer Time

A Business Suggestion :

☞ While to most people summer means a season of recreation or loafing, to the bookseller it means increased activity and watchfulness to maintain the continuity of business and to bridge over until the fall and holiday season brings relief.

☞ One of the most important aids in pushing business during the "dull" season is a tempting catalogue in magazine form of books suitable for shore and mountain reading, such as is prepared by this office in "SUMMER READING." It is prepared with the view of bringing to the special attention of summer visitors the books in which they are most likely to be interested, and of giving attractive foretastes of the delights stored in them.

☞ Such a catalogue should be found serviceable by two classes of the trade: first, by city dealers, who may retain trade by filling orders by mail for the multitudes who go far out of sight of any bookstore, but can be cultivated by the aid of Uncle Sam; and second, by booksellers at or near summer resorts, who desire to pleasantly acquaint summer visitors that there is a bookstore near at hand from which they can be supplied. With such an aid old customers may be retained and new trade created.

☞ "SUMMER READING" has been issued annually for a number of years, and has become a regular feature of the trade. With its new and attractive cover, bearing the special imprint of the dealer, it is adapted for circulation all through the summer, and that, too, at a price which will enable any bookseller to make at least a trial of securing trade through its means. A few lots are left over and will be disposed of while they last, with each dealer's imprint free, at the following rates:

100 copies, $3.50; 250 copies, $8.00; 500 copies, $15.00

☞ Now ready for delivery. Directions for shipping should be given with the order.

NOTES IN SEASON.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY announce an important and timely book on "The Awakening of Turkey." It is from the pen of E. F. Knight, author of "Where Three Empires Meet," and describes the growth of the Young Turk Movement from its origin, and gives a history of the recent revolution.

THE REILLY & BRITTON COMPANY will publish on June 19 a timely story entitled "A Woman for Mayor," by Helen M. Winslow, former editor of The Club Woman and author of "The President of Quex," etc., which is first of all a genuine love story. The fact that it is laid in an atmosphere of politics—red hot politics—serves only to strengthen the general plot.

GEORGE H. DORAN COMPANY will publish at once a novel entitled "The Old Wives' Tale," by Arnold Bennett, which has been highly praised by competent judges abroad, and characterized as "a most fascinating combination of De Morgan and William J. Locke at their best." They have also just ready "The Compact," by Ridgwell Cullum, a South African story of unusual force and worth.

JOHN LANE COMPANY have brought out this week a volume on "Grieg and His Music," by H. T. Finck, based on the author's sketch originally written for the Masters of Music, which has now been more than doubled by the addition of new material. Mr. Finck had the privilege of using 400 unpublished letters written by Grieg to his two most intimate friends, Beyer and Rontgen, and there are also a number of new pictures. They have also just ready "Joan of the Hills," a new story by T. B. Glegg, who again takes his readers to a remote station in Australia.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY have just brought out a new work by A. T. Mahan, Rear-Admiral U. S. Navy, entitled "The Harvest Within: Being Thoughts on the Life of a Christian." The underlying theme of this work is "the mystical relation of the individual life of the Christian man and the corporate life of the Christian Church, to the Life of God in Jesus Christ." This is quite a departure from the usual writings of Admiral Mahan, who has gained renown as the author of authoritative books on matters connected with the sea and naval affairs, and embodies the thoughts and reflections of a lifetime. They have also just ready "Old Whaling Days," by Howland Tripp, a collection of stories of real people and real incidents that played prominent parts in New Bedford, Mass., when that town was the centre of the whaling industry. The book has much quaint humor and interesting description.

DODD, MEAD & COMPANY will bring out on the 12th inst. a novel entitled "The Whirl," by Foxcroft Davis, dealing with diplomatic Washington, full of political intrigue and incidentally confirming a British ambassador's warning to one of his attachés not to become entangled in intrigue with the native American woman, who, he said, had the characteristics of English women, of those of France, Spain and Germany and even of those of India. They expect to publish at the same time a volume entitled "What Is Physical Life?" by Dr. William Hanna Thomson, author of "Brain and Personality," etc., in which the author entertainingly tells about the present status of the Darwinian theory, about reproduction and heredity, what "unicellular micro-organisms" are and their place in the "living kingdom," discusses the "great" food question and the "Internal Adaptation to Environment," and closes with a chapter, "As to Ourselves."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books issued by publishers who protect the prices of their new publications are preceded in this list by the double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. Works of fiction (not net) of which a minimum price is protected by their publishers, are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not protected are preceded by a single asterisk *, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

By the lecturer on Latin-American history, Yale University. He left New York about the middle of November, 1906, spent a fortnight in the islands of Vieques, Porto Rico and Curaçao and reached Caracas early in December. Here he spent a month, then followed Bolivar's route for four months. He gives information in the fields of geography and ethnology as well as in his special field of history. Bolivar's journey resulted in the permanent expulsion of Spanish power from Colombia. Folded map.

Blythe, S: G: We have with us to-night; what happens at that great American institution, the banquet. Phil., Henry Altemus Co., [1909.] c. 92 p. S. bds., 50 c.

A clever take-off upon that specially American institution "the banquet," gotten up for special occasions, at which there is generally much vain-glorious boasting after perhaps enough stimulant to make every joke "tell."

Boyd, R. H., D.D. The separate, or "Jim crow" car laws, or legislative enactments of fourteen southern states; together with the report and order of the Interstate Commerce Commission to segregate negro or "colored" passengers on railroad trains and in railroad stations. Nashville, Tenn., National Baptist Publishing Board, [1909.] 67 p. S. limp bds., 25 c.

Gotten out in compliance with a resolution of the National Baptist Convention, September 19, 1908, at Lexington, Ky. Intended for negroes to show them their exact rights in travelling and to show them how they may set about getting them.

Brigham, Louise. Box furniture: how to make a hundred useful articles for the home; il. by E. H. Ascherman. N. Y., Century Co., 1909. c. 293 p. D. cl., $1.60 net.

By box furniture Miss Brigham means what the plain words imply, furniture made out of boxes, just the ordinary boxes in which your grocer has his goods packed and which he may give you or will sell you for a trifle. A list is given of the tools with which this raw material may be turned into finished products, such as wardrobes and dressers, bookshelves and brackets, tables, chairs, stools and scores of other things. The directions which are given are put into clear and simple language and the accompanying illustrations materially help out the elucidation of the text.

Bromwell, H: Pelham Holmes. The song of the Wahbeek: a poem. Denver, Colo., Henrietta E. Bromwell, [1909.] 195 p. por. D. cl., $1; leath., $2.

The Wahbeek is a boulder from which the spirit is evoked by a poet, a philosopher, a theologian and a chronicler. This spirit relates the love story of Klo-lo-war and Lo-wi-el, members of a superior race, which according to Indian tradition occupied this country before the redman. Book contains several short poems as well.

Brown, J: Franklin. The American high school. N. Y., Macmillan, 1909. c. 12+462 p. tabs., fold. tab., D. cl., $1.40 net.

The present volume deals with the high school from the educator's point of view, the author having formerly been professor of education and inspector of high schools for the State University of Iowa. He makes a plea for special training for high school teachers, other than a desire to teach the subject which interested them most in their college courses. The chapters treat of the function of the high school, the teacher, the pupil, the principal, material equipment, government, organization and management, etc. Bibliographies at end of chapters.

Burchill, Georgine, Ettinger, W: S., and Shimer, Edgar Dubs. The progressive road to reading. Bks. 1, 2. N. Y., Silver, Burdett & Co., [1909.] c. 128; 160 p. il. O. cl., bk. 1, 32 c.; bk. 2, 40 c.

This method is employed in Public School 147, Manhattan, N. Y. City. Its success establishes the fact that it makes the child's work a pleasure, and enables him to acquire reading power in an incredibly short time.

scopic motion. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1909. 12+140 p. figs. pls. O. cl., *$1.50 net.

Author is assistant master at Charterhouse, Godalming, England. Treatise on the top, giving illustrations and mathematical formulas bearing on the relation of the top's motion to the steering of torpedoes, steadying of ships, and the theory of modern science which holds that all so-called solid matter is really composed of a vast infinitude of particles whirling around each other.

Cross, Wilbur Lucius. The life and times of Laurence Sterne. N. Y., Macmillan, 1909. c. 15+555 p. pors. pl. O. cl., *$2.50 net.

Author is professor of English in the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University. He has had access to many letters and documents unknown to previous biographers. His purpose is biographical. He ranks Sterne with Rabelais and Cervantes and explains what his contemporaries thought of him. A feature of the book is the reproduction of every portrait of Sterne in existence. Gives vivid picture of England 18th century society. Appendix, devoted to sources, covers 24 pages.

Cyr, Mrs. Ellen M., [now Mrs. Ruel P. Smith.] The story of three great artists: Raphael, Michael Angelo, Leonardo da Vinci. Bost., Ginn, 1908, [1909.] c. 8+204 p. il. D. (Graded art readers; bk. 3.) cl., 50 c.

Three stories of the lives of three great artists, with descriptions of their most wonderful paintings, that children may learn to know them; written in simple language, and with many interesting illustrations.

Dalton, W. Inferences at bridge; reprinted with additions from The Saturday Review. Phil., Lippincott, 1909. 86 p. S. cl., *40 c. net.

In order to become a first-class bridge player it is necessary to do more than merely follow the rules carefully. The author explains how, by following the play carefully, a person may learn to infer where every card of a suit is placed.

Davenport, B: Rush, ed. Digest of literature: the knowledge in a nutshell of the world's most famous works for busy people of America; romance, drama, mythology and reference book of useful information; ed. by B: Rush Davenport, with suggestions from the Rt. Hon. W: E. Gladstone, the assistance of the fellowship of Christ Church, Oxford, England, and also the faculties of the leading American universities. 3 v. Phil., Pa., Historical Publishing Co., [1909.] c. front. pors. 4°. (Add. pubs. for price.)

Davis, Foxcroft. The whirl: a romance of Washington society; with il. [in color] by Harrison Fisher and B. Martin Justice. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1909. c. '07. 306 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of Washington diplomatic life. The British Ambassador warns his nephew against marrying an American woman. He does choose a delightful girl from rural Kentucky, who later makes a fine Ambassador's daughter. The nephew has had "a past" in India, and the consequences affect his political life. An American senator of highest honor is almost ruined by the same woman who has so influenced the nephew's early career. All ends satisfactorily.

Davis, Michael Marks. Psychological interpretations of society. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1909. 260 p. O. (Columbia University studies in history, economics and public law.) pap., $2.

Gives a type study of Gabriel Tarde, the premier psychological sociologist. Defines the working relation between the social mind and the individual, between the thoughts that have meaning for only one mind and the thoughts that guide or express the concerted action of a group. He states as crucial question: "As we co-adopt men (which is democracy) what should we leave to each man?"

Davis, R: Harding. The White Mice; il. by G: Gibbs. N. Y., Scribner, 1909. c. 309 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

All submarine boats carry mice to warn the crew of escaping gas by collapsing on the floor. Three young men, a little the worse for indulgence in liquids, decide to be White Mice and save people's lives. An American collegian, a Venezuelan revolutionary general and a young lady of South and North American mixed parentage are the chief characters in a story rather overweighted with happenings.

De Groot, C. Hofstede. A catalogue raisonné of the works of the most eminent Dutch painters of the seventeenth century; based on the work of J: Smith by C. Hofstede De Groot, (with the assistance of Kurt Friese;) tr. and ed. by E: G. Hawke. In 10 v. v. 2. N. Y., Macmillan, 1909. 11+684 p. 8°, cl., *$7.50 net.

The second volume of this important work is devoted to the painters of landscape with figures, Aelbert Cuyp and Philips Wouwerman. For volume 1 see American Catalog, 1908.

De Land, Fred. Dumb no longer; romance of the telephone. Wash., D. C., Volta Bureau, 1908, [1909.] c. '06. 285 p. pls. pors. O. cl., $1.50.

Explains that the principles underlying the invention of the telephone are the same that make it possible to teach deaf children to understand speech by a simple system of physiological symbols in which each line and each curve represents the adjustment of the vocal organ to be used in conveying an idea. The story of the work done for the deaf is told enthusiastically.

Diven, T: J. Aztecs and Mayas. In 2 v. v. 1. Chic., Antiquarian Co., 59 Dearborn St., 1909 c. 248 p. D. cl., $1.

In 1887 the author bought a 200 acre farm near the Kankakee River in Illinois. He discovered from flint hatchets and arrowheads found on this farm that on it had been two Indian villages and that all about had been settlements. He collected many Indian implements; visited museums in Europe and Mexico to study their histories. He gives a list of five pages of works he has read for this purpose on the subject of North American archaeology. He explains his position about his studies. He will follow this with another volume on the Aztecs chiefly.

Eckard, —, and Naundorff, Charles-Louis. The king who never reigned; being memoirs upon Louis xvii. by Eckard and Naundorff; with a preface by Jules Lemaitre of the Académie Française, together with introd. and notes by Maurice Vitrac and Arnould Galopin, to which is added Joseph Turquan's New light upon the fate of Louis xvii. N. Y., John McBride Co., 1909. 13+17-359 p. pors. pls. O. cl., *$3.50 net.

The first part of the volume, which is in three parts, is by the Royalist Eckard, and gives not only a touching account of the brief and troubled existence of the ill-fated son of Louis xvi. and Marie Antoinette, but also a poignant recital of his own and his family's sufferings and imprisonment in the Temple. The second part contains the marvelous "revelations" of the pretender Naundorff, who in the beginning of the nineteenth century, claimed to be the Dauphin. The third part, entitled "New light upon the fate of Louis xvii.," contains an entirely new theory concerning the mystery of the Dauphin's death and burial.

By the author of "Handbook to the works of Brahms," "The relation of Tchaikovsky to art-questions of the day." He has attempted to apply the methods of educational primers to his more complicated subject. His primer consists in principle, of an appeal to poetical analogies; and in practice, of a formal composition to be made to grow gradually under the reader's own observation, and in illustration of precepts with which he is made acquainted one by one. He has clearly stated much information in small space.

George, Mlle., [Marguerite-Josephine Weymer, called "Mlle. George."] A favorite of Napoleon: memoirs of Mademoiselle George; ed. from the original manuscript by Paul Cheramy; il. with photogravure portraits. N. Y., John McBride Co., 1909. 10+13-320 p. por. O. cl., *$2.50 net.

These memoirs, published recently in Paris, have caused quite a sensation there. They have a distinct historical value, inasmuch as they show Napoleon in quite a new light as regards his relations with women. Mlle. George was born in 1787 at the Theatre of Bayeux, during a representation of "Tartuffe" by her father's company. From such humble origin, she entered upon a long and brilliant career, and her memoirs, written with unsophisticated frankness, form very piquant reading. Her candid criticisms of Napoleon, Josephine, The Emperor Alexander of Russia, Madame de Staël, Prince Bernadotte and others, do much to throw fresh light upon the events of this deeply interesting period.

Hartman, E. R. Socialism versus Christianity. N. Y., Cochrane Publishing Co., 1909. c. 263 p. D. cl., $1.50.

All through the world human beings are struggling with problems involving the destiny of mankind. Socialism, according to the author, decides that the future can only be guesswork, that all there is to do is to drift with the tide and leave the fate of the human race to its inherent strength and goodness. Christianity, on the other hand, offers truth to those who will accept it. The book contrasts the two views of life. The author holds Socialism is "a collectivity of persons without moral backbone, which must further combine to protect themselves from themselves."

Author is teacher of modern languages in the public schools of New York City. Two main ideas underlie this series of readers: First, that the Rational Method (phonetic) is the proper method for the teaching of a foreign language, such as English is to those for whom these readers are intended. Second: That the material for such readers should be adapted to the intellectual development and the educational progress of these pupils.

Writer is instructor in the University of Wisconsin. In 1906-'07 experiments were undertaken at the University to test the practicability for household use of fireless cooking which had proved successful in the army. Explains clearly the principles involved: 1, the observation of heat; that is, the retention in foods of heat developed by contact with fire, without further application of heat; 2, the cooking of foods with the temperature below the boiling point. The experiments were made by Miss Elsa Castendyck, a student in the Home Economics Department.

By the author of "Fundamentals of child study." General psychology argues from conscious states and has accomplished much along this line. Genetic psychology uses the theory of evolution, and starting with the fact that all life phenomena, from those of plant growth to the most complex processes of consciousness, are in certain respects similar, builds up the science of the beginnings and growth of mind. The author believes that this is the psychologist's true field and is only just being opened up by him. References at end of chapters. Index.

A commencement address delivered at the University of Michigan by the Alford professor of philosophy in Harvard University. He explains English study has four aims: the mastery of our language as a science, as a history, as a joy and as a tool. In this talk he dwells especially upon the cultivation of pure thoughts expressed in pure English speech.

"God is either everywhere or nowhere. How are we to teach men that he is everywhere?" Compares the teachings of the orthodox religion taught Christians in regard to the omniscience, omnipresence and omnipotence of God with the refutations these teachings have received from science. Insists upon free-will and that omnipotence does not interfere with fixed natural laws. He points out that this in no way makes God less, but must inspire men to learn constantly "His continued incarnation, His universal redemption and the habitual inspiration of His spirit."

Patten, Simon Nelson. Product and climax. N. Y., Benjamin W. Huebsch, 1909. c. 68 p. D. (Art of life ser.; ed. by E. Howard Griggs.) cl., $50 c. net.

Author is professor of political economy at the University of Pennsylvania. He asks what is it underlies social unrest and industrial discontent? He finds wanting a proper balance between action in toil and reaction in enjoyment or recreation. He aims to bring about the right relation between work and play with the purpose of making a healthier, happier race. He explains that too much time and thought are given to the product at the expense of man's rights, especially his rights to time and space. The moral agencies must open their doors and work to a climax of right living.

Pickett, W. P. The negro problem: Abraham Lincoln's solution. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. c. 10+580 p. por. O. cl., $2.50 net.

Under the above title, Mr. Pickett states and elaborates Lincoln's proposed disposition of the negro question by assisted emigration following emancipation. The author, after reviewing the history of the problem and discussing the present situation of the negro population, boldly argues that the nation's treatment of the black man since the close of the Civil War has been founded upon a mistaken policy. He points out the inadequacy of the currently advocated solutions of the problems and asserts that we must return to Lincoln's simple and efficacious remedy for the national evils resulting from the negroes' presence.

Poindexter, Charlotte Mason, comp. Jane Hamilton's recipes: delicacies from the old dominion; preserved and compiled by her great-niece, Charlotte Mason Poindexter. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1909. c. 10+13-191 p. D. hf. cl., $1.

As far as is known the recipes contained in this little book have, up to the present time, never been in print. They were originally collected and for many years used by Jane Hamilton's mother at "Forest Hill," and the faded leaves upon which they were preserved—written out in script half a century ago—have been in the possession of the family since the death of Susan Gibbon Thornton Mason, who was Jane Hamilton's niece. Charlotte Mason Poindexter, the author of this work, is the wife of Lieut. F. C. Poindexter, U. S. A., and these recipes have been well tried in army circles and found to be good. Thirty blank pages for further recipes are bound in the back of the book.

Author is professor of political economy in the University of Wisconsin; and author of "World politics," "Colonial government," etc. While instructing a large university class the author found the students could derive great benefit by reading extensively in documentary sources, but it was difficult to get at these even in a well-stocked library. This suggested to him the plan of making extracts from writings of representative men to enable students and the general public to inform themselves how public affairs are really managed. Editor has steered clear of purely partisan discussions.

Reynolds, Mrs. L. Baillie, [formerly Gertrude M. Robins.] A false position. N. Y., Brentano's, 1909. 348 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A novel of English conditions. An English duke has married a governess. He dies; the governess marries an American millionaire, who is devotedly kind to the Duke's daughter, Lady May. Left an orphan Lady May refuses to apply for help to her titled relatives and becomes a companion to a rich English girl. She falls ill and is in abject want when a rich English jurist offers her his name and a home. She manages his household admirably, but the "false position" in which she is put by keeping some of her previous associations concealed from her husband, make the plot in which her husband's nephew bears conspicuous part. She is a fine woman and all ends well.

Rider, Arthur Fremont. Are the dead alive?: the problem of physical research that the world's leading scientists are trying to solve, and the progress they have made; with statements of their personal belief by Sir Oliver Lodge, Count Leo Tolstoi, Dr. Cesare Lombroso, Andrew Lang, Prof. W. James, [and others.] N. Y., B. W. Dodge Co., 1909. c. '08. 16+372 p. pls. facsimils., O. cl., $1.75, fixed.

The work is a popular review of recent progress in psychical research in part founded on a series of articles, which have run during the past winter in The Delineator, creating wide comment. The author's purpose is not, he states, so much to add new material to the subject, as to digest the large mass already published, to find, if possible, the new kernels of truth in a great mass of ignorance, error, credulity and conflicting fact and theory, and to present that truth clearly and interestingly.

By the author of "A manual of marine engineering." The object of the present work is to amplify and extend what was in that mostly in rudimentary form, and to give all that is new and of importance and necessary to be known by the students, draughtsmen, sea-going engineers, designers and others who have found the former book of assistance. The history of propellers gives the reader all the good inventions, their inventors, patent numbers, etc. It is curious to note how many good inventions came from people outside the profession of engineering.

Author is chaplain of St. Mary's Hospital, Ilford, England. Four reports on the use of Eucharistic vestments have recently issued from Convocation. In these meetings the historical evidence was, once more, carefully reviewed. The leading quarterly of the English church deplores the learning and ability that has been expended in controversy for the last fifty years. The author thinks the question should not be left to individual preference. It is a collective question, a question for the Communion as a whole, and should be definitely settled. Authority should determine and explain use of ornamental ritual.

Author is city engineer, Edinburgh. The greatly increased use of motor-cars in England has led to various investigations of the possibility of abating the dust nuisance which is so injurious to both health and property. The old methods of road construction do not meet modern requirements and Mr. Smith has devoted much time to the solution of the problem of making dustless highways. Tar macadam appears to him to offer great possibilities for the abatement of the nuisance. Index. Appendix-tabulated analysis of replies to queries.

This novel, reminiscent of Mrs. Ward's recent visit to the United States, was published in England under the title, "Daphne; or, marriage à la mode." It is chiefly an argument against divorce as it exists in this country. Daphne is a great heiress, quick-tempered and jealous, who more resembles her Spanish mother than her American father. Roger Barnes meets her on an excursion to Mount Vernon. He is a good looking young Englishman of limited means, who is tempted by her millions. They agree to marry, and go to England to his mother's house. After a succession of painful scenes the result is a divorce, in which Daphne is made to appear not only heartless, but unscrupulous. The book is fuller than the story as given in serial form in McClure's Magazine.

Peter Somer, a wealthy young New Yorker, belonging to an old, aristocratic family, suddenly loses his fortune and is obliged to do something to earn enough money to live on and keep his wife. They are devotedly in love with each other and face the future bravely. They move into a country house belonging to Peter and prepare to rough it. Many queer things happen. Peter attends to the housekeeping while his wife gives lessons in French and music. Twins after awhile are born, and trouble grows apace. The story is told with much humor.

BUSINESS NOTES.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COL.—The Pike's Peak Book & Stationery Company has been incorporated here. The capital is reported to be $20,000 and the incorporators are William McCoy, Anna Jacobs and Margaret Hurst.

DAVENPORT, IA.—The stock of the Thomas Thompson bookstore, one of the oldest establishments of the kind here, has been turned over to H. B. Christensen & Co., of Chicago, to be disposed of at once.

JACKSONVILLE, ILL.—The C. R. Weaver Co. recently bought the Reed Bookstore at Lincoln, Ill.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—Several local creditors of the John S. Thayer Company, booksellers and printers, at 434 South Broadway, filed an involuntary bankruptcy petition in the United States District Court. It is alleged that the concern is insolvent and the appointment of a receiver is asked. The Thayer Company recently moved into the fine new quarters in the Bumiller Building. It is supposed that slow collections and heavy expenses combined to cause the financial difficulties, which, it is expected, will be only temporary.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Sherwood's Bookstore has been removed from No. 145 to No. 141 Fulton Street, the quarters formerly occupied by Young & Graham, who recently removed to John Street.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM SCHROEDER, the well-known bookseller of St. Joseph, Mo., died at Excelsior Springs, on May 22. Mr. Schroeder was born in Germany fifty years ago and came to this country in 1888, settling in St. Joseph, where he shortly after opened up a book and stationery business at 112-114 South Eighth Street. In 1893 he married Emma Goetze, of Dayton, Ky., who will continue the business as sole owner, with S. G. Mamschreck, who has been in the employ of Mr. Schroeder for twenty years, as manager.

OUR EDUCATIONAL LIST.

It is not surprising that the retail book-trade has been discouraged of recent years from pushing the sale of school books, because it has been so largely a trend of educational publishers to deal directly with school authorities to the exclusion of the retail booktrade. Nevertheless, it remains true that there is a considerable retail business in school books, actual and potential, and that he is a wise bookseller who makes the most of the opportunity. There are several businesses, jobbing and retail, which make a successful specialty of school books and in most parts of the country there is more or less opportunity to maintain some trade in this field. Notwithstanding the large proportion of educational books published and distributed by the American Book Company the list of educational publishers grows rather than diminishes in number, as we have more than once pointed out, for it is practically impossible to maintain anything in the nature of a trust in any division of book publishing.

Our Annual Educational List, which we have now in preparation, is intended primarily to be of service to the retail trade in handling school books, and especially through imprint editions to enable the bookseller to obtain and retain school trade. It has been practically re-made in recent years, especially in the classification which is appended to the alphabetical list, and it is intended to serve the double purpose of furnishing a finding list from which the bookseller can give instantly the publisher and price of any live school book, and of providing a classified key which will enable him to answer questions as to what books are available in any specific branch of study. The List is carefully revised from year to year to drop dead wood and to include all new titles, and most publishing houses co-operate promptly in the revision, which is now in progress for this year.

We should be glad to have not only from publishers but more especially from the retail trade as the chief users of the List, suggestions which will make it more effective. The arrangement of the main list is as simple as possible, being an alphabetical entry by author with the two exceptions that books which are better known to the trade in relation to series are entered under the series name, and that classical texts are entered under the name of the editor, by which name we understand they are more frequently called for. These exceptions make the list to that extent illogical; but if the list serves the trade more practically in this way, so much the better. If any consider that the list would be as useful if classical entries were made by authors instead of by editors, we should be glad to have their opinion to this effect.

In the classified index, as re-shaped two years ago, it has been the endeavor to follow modern lines of division. But here it has been found almost impossible to adopt a method or reach conclusions which satisfy everybody. Apparently the classification cannot be logical if it is to be practical. We specifically ask the retail trade as users of the List to give us the benefit of any suggestions they can make toward the betterment of this classification in method, all of which will have careful consideration. It is not practicable to base the List from year to year on examination of the individual books, because this would entail labor which would make it impossible to publish the list in season for its full usefulness, and we have therefore been obliged to follow the indications afforded by the title or by publishers' information. The nomenclature of school book titles is very confusing, the word "complete," for example, being used in a double sense as covering a full course for all grades or as meaning a comprehensive book for the highest grade. For any light that can be thrown on errors in the catalogue, we should be grateful.

Retail dealers who have not of late years taken advantage of the Educational List as a means of holding or increasing their school book trade are invited to consider such use this year.

THE recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of a painting by Hernandez supports the view previously set forth by the Register of Copyrights that a foreign author who cannot claim copyright under United States copyright law and conventions cannot assign to any other person a claim or right. In this case the author was a citizen of Peru, with which there was no copyright convention or treaty. The same reasoning would, of course, apply to authors of books.

COPYRIGHT THROUGH ASSIGNMENT.

WE give below the text of the decision rendered May 24 by Justice McKenna of the Supreme Court of the United States in the suit of Richard Bong, plaintiff in error v. The Alfred S. Campbell Art Company, in error to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit:

This is an action under the copyright statutes to recover penalties and forfeitures for the infringement of a copyright of a painting.

The complaint shows the following facts: Plaintiff in error (as he was plaintiff in the trial court we shall refer to him hereafter as plaintiff, and to defendant in error as defendant) was a citizen and subject to the German Empire and resident of the City of Berlin, that nation being one which permits to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as its own citizens. It is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States may at its pleasure become a party, the existence of which condition has been determined by the President of the United States by proclamation duly made. 27 Stat. 1021. The defendant is a New Jersey corporation doing business in New York under the laws of the latter State.

In 1899 one Daniel Hernandez painted and designed a painting, called "Dolce far niente," he then being a citizen and subject of Spain, which nation permits the benefit of copyright to citizens of the United States on substantially the same basis as its own citizens, as has been determined by the proclamation of the President of the United States. 29 Stat. 871. Prior to November 8, 1902, plaintiff became the sole proprietor of said painting by due assignment pursuant to law. About said date plaintiff applied for a copyright, in conformity with the laws of the United States respecting copyrights, before the publication of the painting or any copy thereof. Plaintiff inscribed, and has kept inscribed, upon a visible portion of the painting the words "Copyright by Rich Bong," and also upon every every copy thereof. By reason of the premises, it is alleged, plaintiff became and was entitled for the term of twenty-eight years to the sole liberty of printing, reprinting, publishing and vending the painting. A violation of the copyright by defendant is alleged by printing, exposing for sale and selling copies of the painting under the name of "Sunbeam," by Hernandez, and that defendant has in its possession over 1,000 copies. By reason of the premises, it is alleged, and under section 4965 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, as amended by the act of March 3, 1895, defendant has forfeited the plates on which the painting is copied and every sheet thereof copied or printed, and $10 for every copy of the same in its possession and by it sold or exposed for sale, not more, however, than $10,000, whereof one-half shall go to plaintiff and the other half to the United States. Judgment of forfeiture is prayed.

Defendant answered, admitting that it was a corporation as alleged, and was doing business in New York. It denied, either absolutely or upon information and belief, all other allegations.

The court directed a verdict for the defendant, counsel for the plaintiff having stated in his opening, as it is admitted, that he would offer no evidence to establish the citizenship of Hernandez, and would not controvert the statement made by the defense that he was a citizen of Peru (it was alleged in the complaint that he was a citizen of Spain), as to which country the President had issued no copyright proclamation. It is also admitted that plaintiff never owned the "physical painting." There was introduced in evidence a conveyance of the right to enter the painting for copyright protection in America and the exclusive right of reproduction in colors and of engraving, etching, lithography, in black and in colors. The right of photography and reproduction by all photographic monochrome processes was reserved.

The ruling of the District Court, and that of the Court of Appeals sustaining it, were based on the ground that Hernandez, being a citizen of Peru and not having the right to copyright in the United States, could convey no right to plaintiff. Plaintiff attacks this ruling and contends that the act of March 3, 1891, "confers copyright where the person applying for the same as proprietor or assign of the author or proprietor is a subject of a country with which we have copyright relations, whether the author be a subject of one of those countries or not."

Whatever strength there is in the contention must turn upon the words of the statute conferring the copyright. Section 4952 of the Revised Statutes, as amended by the act of March 3, 1891 (L. Sup. R. S. 951), reads as follows:

"The author, inventor, designer or proprietor of any book, map, chart, . . . painting . . . and the executors, administrators and assigns of any such person shall, upon complying with the provisions of this chapter, have the sole liberty of printing, reprinting, publishing, completing, copying, executing, finishing and vending the same," etc.

Other sections prescribe the proceedings to be taken to secure copyright, and section 13 provides as follows:

"That this act shall only apply to a citizen or subject of a foreign state or nation which such foreign state or nation permits to citizens of the United States of America the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as its own citizens, or when such foreign state or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States of America may at its pleasure become a party to such agreement. The existence of either of the conditions aforesaid shall be determined by the President of the United States by proclamation made, from time to time, as the purposes of this act may require." 1 Sup. Rev. St. p. 954.

Plaintiff urges that he is "The 'assign' of the author and proprietor of the painting . . . and being himself a 'citizen or subject of a foreign nation' with which we have copyright relations," the condition of the statute is satisfied, and his copyright is valid, though Hernandez was not such citizen or subject. In other words, though the author of a painting has not the right to copyright, his assignee has if he is a citizen or subject of a foreign state with which we have copyright relations, these being, it is contended, the conditions expressed in section 13. Counsel's argument in support of this contention is able, but we are saved from a detailed consideration of it by the decision of this court in American Tobacco Company v. Werckmeister, 207 U. S. 284. In that case we said that "the purpose of the copyright law is not so much the protection and control of the visible thing, as to secure a monopoly, having a limited time, of the right to publish the production, which is the result of the inventor's thought." In considering who was entitled to such right under the statute we defined the word "assigns," as used in the statute. We said: "It seems clear that the word 'assigns' in this section is not used as descriptive of the character of the estate which the 'author, inventor, designer or proprietor' may acquire under the statutes, for the 'assigns' of any such person, as well as the persons themselves, may, 'upon complying with the provisions of this chapter, have the sole liberty of printing, publishing and vending the same.' This would seem to demonstrate the intention of Congress to vest in 'assigns,' before copyright, the same privilege of subsequently acquiring complete statutory copyright as the original author, inventor, dealer or proprietor," and there was an explicit definition of the right transferred as follows: "While it is true that the property in copyright in this country is the creature of the statute, the nature and character of the property grows out of the recognition of the separate ownership of the right of copying from that which inheres in the mere physical control of the thing itself, and the statute must be read in the light of the intention of Congress to protect these intangible rights as a reward of the inventive genius that has produced the work." In other words, an assignee within the meaning of the statute is one who receives a transfer, not necessarily of the painting, but of the right to multiply copies of it. And such right does not depend alone upon the statute, as contended by plaintiff, but is a right derived from the painter and secured by the statute to the assignee of the painter's right. Of this the opinion leaves no doubt, for it is further said: "We think every consideration of the nature of the property and the things to be accomplished support the conclusion that this statute means to give to the assignees of the original owner of the right to copyright an article, [italics ours,] the right to take out the copyright secured by the statute independently of the ownership of the article itself." The same idea was repeated when the court came to consider whether the exhibition of the painting, which was the subject matter of the case, in the Royal Gallery, constituted a general publication which deprived the painter, as the owner of the copyright, of the benefit of the statutory provision. It was said: "Considering this feature of the case, it is well to remember that the property of the author or painter in his intellectual creation is absolute until he voluntarily parts with the same." And the painter had the right of copyright, he being a subject of Great Britain, that country having copyright relations with the United States. His assignee, Werckmeister, was also a citizen of a country having copyright relations with us. But it was the right of the painter which was made prominent in the case and determined its decision.

It was not an abstract right the court passed on, one that arose simply from ownership of the painting. It was the right given by the statute, and which, when transferred, constituted the person to whom it was transferred an assignee under the statute and of the rights which the statute conferred on the assignor. "It is the physical thing created, or the right of printing, publishing, copying, etc., which is within the statutory protection." It is this right of multiplication of copies that is asserted in the case at bar, and it is not necessary to consider what right plaintiff might have had under the common law "before he sought his federal copyright and published the painting." See White-Smith Music Co. v. Apollo Co., 209 U. S. 1.

It is next contended that Hernandez, as a subject of Peru, was entitled to a statutory copyright in his own right, because, as it is further contended, Peru belongs to the Montevideo International Union. This contention is based on the words of section 13, supra, which gives the right of copyright to a citizen or subject of a foreign state or nation when such state or nation "is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States of America may, at its pleasure, become a party to such agreement." If this were all there were in the statute, the contention of the plaintiff might have some foundation. The statute, however, provides that the existence of such condition "shall be determined by the President of the United States by proclamation, made from time to time, as the purposes" of the "act may require." It is insisted, however, that this provision is directory and a right is conferred independent of the action of the President, his proclamation being only a convenient mode of proving the fact. We cannot concur in this view, nor do the cases cited by plaintiff sustain it. In Morrell v. Jones, 106 U. S. 466; Campbell v. United States, 107 U. S. 407; Williamson v. United States, 207 U. S. 425, this court decided that where the Secretary of the Treasury or Secretary of the Interior is authorized to make regulations in aid of the law, he cannot make regulations which defeat the law. In Buttfield v.

Stranahan, 192 U. S. 470, a regulation of the Secretary of the Treasury fixed the primary standard of imported tea, and was sustained as an "executive duty to effectuate the legislative policy declared in the statute."

It is admitted that the decision of the State Department is adverse to the contention, and, it is asserted by defendant and not denied by plaintiff, that the Librarian of Congress has always construed the statutes as denying to citizens of Peru copyright protection. We think, besides, the statute is clear and makes the President's proclamation a condition of the right. And there was reason for it. The statute contemplated a reciprocity of rights, and what officer is better able to determine the conditions upon which they might depend than the President?

On the record, we think there was no error in directing a verdict on the opening statement of counsel. We agree, however, with plaintiff that it is better to let a case be developed by evidence. In Hoffman House v. Foote, 172 N. Y. 248, it was pertinently said: "The practice of disposing of cases upon the mere opening of counsel is generally a very unsafe method of deciding controversies where there is or was anything to decide." Judgment affirmed.

THE EDWARD THOMPSON CO. NOT GUILTY OF INFRINGING WEST PUBLISHING CO.'S COPYRIGHTS.

JUDGE THOMAS I. CHATFIELD handed down a decision in the United States Circuit Court, Brooklyn, N. Y., June 1, dismissing the case brought by the West Publishing Company, of St. Paul, Minn., against the Edward Thompson Company, of Northport, Long Island, in 1903. The West Publishing Company claimed that the Edward Thompson Company had been infringing its copyrights for fifteen years prior to the date of the action. "The American and English Encyclopedia of Law" and "The Encyclopedia of Pleading and Practice" issued at Northport were alleged to be made up largely from copyrighted matter of The West Publishing Company.

The West Publishing Company cited more than nine thousand articles in furtherance of its claim that not fewer than one thousand copyrights had been violated. The Northport extracts, it was stated, were taken from the plaintiff's National Reporter system.

Judge Chatfield decided, however, that there were not enough clear instances of the violations complained of to warrant the suppression of the seventy-four volumes of the encyclopedia, and that The West Publishing Company had only an action for damages. Enough of the sources of the material involved were open to the use of others, because of defects in the copyrights, to make it inequitable to enjoin the publication of the entire work.

The case is considered one of the most important that has been decided in the federal courts in years. The fight has cost both litigants small fortunes and has occupied the attention of the court for five years.

RULING ON POST CARDS.

AMONG the decisions in customs cases recently made in the United States courts and by the Board of General Appraisers was one of particular interest to importers and dealers in post cards.

Postal cards, lithographically printed and attached together were held by the United States Circuit Court not to be "booklets" with duty at the rate of eight cents per pound. Instead, Judge Platt for the court finds that the merchandise should be allowed to enter this country under the lithographic provision of paragraph 400, which calls for a tax of five cents a pound. Both the Collector of Customs and the Board of General Appraisers had decided that the merchandise ought to pay the tax as "booklets."

The goods in controversy consisted of six postal cards lithographically printed and attached together so arranged that they may be drawn out in a long strip. Each unit has on its reverse side the printing usual to post cards, and may readily be detached and used as a separate card. The article is completed by the addition of a paper cover, consisting of a piece of paper folded once and attached by some adhesive. The description on this cover indicates that the contents are post cards to be detached for separate use.

In discussing the subject of the classification of cards of this character, which forms the basis of bitter trade disputes between American and foreign manufacturers of the articles, Judge Platt lays down rules of deep interest to both sides to whom the difference in duty may mean control of the domestic market. He says:

"I am of the opinion that the importers' contention is correct and that the goods are lithographic prints and not booklets. The paper cover is purely incidental, being for the purpose of protection and convenience. I think that the articles have been brought over in this form for convenience in handling, and that their dutiable status is precisely that of six detached post cards in an envelope.

"This view is not in conflict with my former ruling on lithographic wall pockets. In that case lithographic prints had been used in making up a complete article called a wall pocket. The prints were a feature of an article which had gone beyond the condition of lithographic prints. In the present case that condition has not been passed; they are still lithographic prints.

"In determining the 'cutting' size of the prints, to meet the conditions of paragraph 400, the size of each card, rather than of the whole series, should be taken, just the same as if they were imported separately. Practically it is an importation of but six separate cards."

Judge Platt also handed down a decision dealing with the classification of postal cards of paper and other materials, classified by the customs authorities variously as manufactures of wood, silk, printed matter and manufactures of paper. Jacob Deutsch, A. H. Ringh and Hensel, Bruckmann & Lorbacher were the importers, and maintained in behalf of the importers that all of the goods should be allowed to come in at 25 per cent. under the provision in the Dingley law for "printed matter." Judge Platt reverses the Board of Appraisers in affirming the collector's assessment at higher rates, and holds the goods regardless of their components of chief value to be merely printed matter.

HOOPER & JACKSON, LIMITED, AT WAR.

THE New York Times on May 28 printed an account of a "falling out" between Walter M. Jackson and Horace E. Hooper, who form the firm of Hooper & Jackson, Limited, which for years has controlled the publication and sale of the "Encyclopædia Britannica," in connection with the London Times, as well as the various corporations doing business under the shadow of "The Thunderer's" name, which will be found of interest to the trade in general and is therefore reprinted in full below:

"As the result of a disagreement between Walter M. Jackson of Newton, Mass., and Horace E. Hooper, who for many years have been associated in the publication and sale of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica,' Mr. Jackson, on May 27, filed a bill in Chancery, [at Trenton, N. J.,] asking that a receiver be appointed to take charge of their joint assets, and that an injunction issue restraining Mr. Hooper and his associates from consummating an alleged plan to oust Mr. Jackson from the business. The complainant further seeks to have the partnership dissolved and an accounting rendered by the defendants.

"In answer to the bill, the defendants were ordered to show cause on June 2 why an injunction should not issue in accordance with the prayer. The order also restrains the defendants temporarily from assigning or disposing of any stock in the company of Hooper & Jackson, Limited. It further restrains any disposition being made of the English or American rights in the eleventh edition of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica.'

"The bill of complaint gives some inside history regarding the business management of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica' and a plan of its prospectus for the purchase of the London Times, which was interested in the enterprise. It shows that for years Mr. Jackson and Mr. Hooper under a joint partnership controlled absolutely the affairs of the various corporations which were organized to circulate the encyclopædia. By means of dummy directors, who performed no actual services for their corporations, and in some instances met less than once a year, the partners managed the details of the enterprise and kept their books in such a manner as to escape the payment of taxes to which the partnership, under the English law, would have been subjected.

"Prior to 1900 Mr. Jackson and Mr. Hooper had been associated with James Clarke and George Clarke in the publication and sale of subscription books. The principal office was in London, and the business was carried on under the name of the Clarke Company, Limited. Some time in March of that year Hooper and Jackson decided to become more closely associated in the ownership and control of the business, and in furtherance of their plan acquired the Clarke interests.

"From 1900 until about last November the partners conducted their various joint enterprises resulting from their partnership in different countries under various names and according to the means and methods which the business in the respective localities seemed to demand. During the period from 1900 to 1902 they acquired their most important assets, namely, the copyrights and trade name of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica.' All books which they published were offered to the public in the name either of the London Times, the London Standard, or of some other newspaper, or in the name of the Grolier Society of London, a trade name adopted by the partners.

"In 1902, owing to the provisions of the English law putting a tax on the business, the affairs of the Clarke Company, Limited, were liquidated, and English and American companies were formed to take over the business. The English company was known as Hooper & Jackson, Limited, and the American corporation as the Encyclopædia Britannica Company, a New York corporation. The partners drew from the business of the Clarke Company, Limited, $100,000 for operating expenses of Hooper & Jackson, Limited, and the remaining assets were conveyed to the New York company for the issuing of its $500,000 worth of capital stock and $1,000,000 in bonds.

"The bill sets forth that the partnership was threatened with many infringements of its copyrights, particularly in the United States. Under advice of counsel the Encyclopædia Britannica Company of Illinois was organized in May, 1903, as a substitute for the New York corporation. For the sole purpose of contemplated litigations, the assets of the New York corporation were transferred to the Illinois company, as were the copyrights which had been held in trust for Jackson and Hooper by A. & C. Black. The capital stock of the company was equally divided between Mr. Hooper and Mr. Jackson, one share each, for the purpose of organization merely, being placed in the name of Franklin H. Hooper, William J. Cox, Harry K. Allen and Stephen A. Foster. In addition to the two partners Franklin H. Hooper, a brother; Mr. Cox, a brother-in-law, and Adam Rimmer Black were made directors. Mr. Black's family name had been identified with the 'Encyclopædia Britannica' for nearly a century, and according to the bill, he was placed on the directorate for the effect of the name in the impending litigations.

"Mr. Hooper asserts that the principal part of the business was always carried on in London. Two sets of accounts were kept under the direction of the same accountant and by the same corps of book-keepers.

"Both Mr. Hooper and Mr. Jackson, according to the papers, had been intimately associated with the management of the advertising and circulating departments of the London Times. In January, 1908, the public announcement of a proposed change in the control of the Times was regarded by Hooper and Jackson as likely to impair the value of a contract they had for the publication of the eleventh edition of the Encyclopedia, to be brought out on January 1 next. At that time it is claimed that about half a million dollars had already been expended under the contract. Mr. Hooper and Mr. Jackson thereupon entered into negotiations looking either to the purchase of the London Times by them, or its control by those whose management of the property would not impair the value of their existing contract.

"The bill states that services in connection with the sale of the newspaper were given by Mr. Hooper and Mr. Jackson, as a result of which it was purchased in March, 1908, by a company organized through the negotiations of the partners. For the personal service thus given, Mr. Jackson says, an offer had been made by the proposed purchasers to pay them 10 per cent. of the purchase price, which was $1,600,000. The new proprietors of the Times entered into a further contract with Hooper and Jackson individually giving them the right to publish and sell exclusively such subscription books as might be mutually agreed upon in the name of the London Times and through its influence.

"The break between Mr. Hooper and Mr. Jackson, according to the bill, was about last July, when they had a disagreement as to the general policy to be pursued in relation to their joint undertakings. Mr. Hooper desired to organize a large corporation to acquire the Times and amalgamate it with their business and sell certain of its securities to the public. To this Mr. Jackson objected as a scheme hazardous and likely to result in a loss. Mr. Hooper then proposed to raise $1,500,000 upon their joint assets, to be used in bringing out the eleventh edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica on an elaborate scale, with great expenditures for advertising in practically all parts of the world simultaneously. To this scheme Mr. Jackson would not give his assent. Mr. Hooper thereupon proposed liquidation of their joint concerns, and asked Mr. Jackson to act as liquidator in the sale of their assets. In a letter to Mr. Jackson he stated that he was willing to close up his whole business and expressed the belief that Mr. Jackson should assume entire responsibility for two or three years, in order that Mr. Hooper might have a needed rest.

"Mr. Jackson says he consented to this plan, and last October negotiations were pending, with the approval of Mr. Hooper, for the sale of the going business as a whole. The partners met in New York in November, when Mr. Hooper proposed that Mr. Jackson should purchase his interest in the business for $2,000,000. Mr. Jackson declined this offer, and Mr. Hooper then proposed that he (Hooper) should be given sole charge and have a large salary for his services. Mr. Jackson also declined to concur in this proposition. Mr. Jackson alleges that Mr. Hooper thereupon declared that through his control of the dummy directors of the Encyclopedia Britannica Company and the alleged indebtedness of Hooper & Jackson, Limited, to that corporation he would assume full control of all their business and affairs, exclude Mr. Jackson from participation therein, and no longer be bound by the agreement as to equal authority and control in management.

"Mr. Jackson charges that in furtherance of this scheme Mr. Hooper has disregarded the original partnership agreement, and through the nominal directors of the Encyclopedia Britannica Company has placed himself in a position in which he can control the affairs of the corporation."

By consent of both parties, Vice-Chancellor Stevens, at Newark, N. J., on June 2, continued until June 14 the order to show cause granted in Trenton as noted above.

A suit between the same parties was begun in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York last month, but three of the defendants raised the question of jurisdiction, alleging they were not residents of New York, two of them holding that New Jersey was their place of residence. It was to establish the question of jurisdiction that the action was begun in Chancery.

LE QUEUX HITS AT GERMAN SPIES IN ENGLAND.

ACCORDING to a special cable despatch to the New York Herald, dated June 1, the English War Office has been annoying the well-known and charming English author, William Le Queux. It seems that Mr. Le Queux has written a book called "The Spies of the Kaiser," which was published this week. In this book Mr. Le Queux set forth in melodramatic form various information that he has collected concerning German spies in England.

It is a severe arraignment of the English Foreign Office. He shows by several facsimile documents that there are some five thousand German spies located in England, mainly on the east coast, and that this system of espionage is controlled from a central head in London.

Mr. Le Queux does not pretend that the statements in his book are absolute facts, but that they are, however, a reflection on conditions that exist.

OTHER DIRECTORY SWINDLERS CONVICTED.

J. POWER FALLON, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and William Murray were convicted by a struck jury in the Quarter Session Court Jersey City, N. J., on May 24, of forgery in connection with a directory swindle. They were trailed for many months by Pinkerton detectives and were rounded up in Jersey City last February.

Representatives of several Jersey City concerns said that they signed contracts for advertisements in Biddle's business directory and subsequently learned that the agreements had been changed and the amounts raised. It was charged that the defendants used a 1903 directory with a 1909 cover and inserted entire pages of advertisements for circulation among their victims.

Fallon gave his name when arrested as "John Brown." A key to J. Power Fallon's printing office on the second floor of 43 Fulton street, New York City, was found in the prisoner's pocket and the police and Pinkerton men raided the plant. They confiscated a lot of printed slips which the police say were used as "inserts" in directories for which Fallon was not authorized to solicit business.

The Pinkertons said that Fallon is the head of a gang of directory swindlers who have been working extensively in various parts of the country for several years.

No defence was made at the trial of Fallon and Murray, their lawyers contending that Assistant Prosecutor George T. Vickers had failed to make out a case for the State. The jury was out about half an hour.

$13,000 FOR A CAXTON.

THERE was spirited bidding at Sotheby's on May 21 for the remarkable Caxton volume described in THE PUBLISHER'S WEEKLY for April 24 (p. 1472), the victory remaining with a private collector, E. Stanley, who paid $13,000 for the treasure. Five small works were included in the original oak binding. The volume was discovered by chance recently in the library of an old manor house in the north of England.

A defective copy of Caxton's "Royal Book" was knocked down for $1,500, in spite of the fact that another copy of this work brought $11,000 in 1902.

BEST-SELLING FICTION IN APRIL.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

KARSLAKE & Co., London, have just published Part 2 of the sixth volume of "Book Auction Records," covering the period from January 1 to March 31, edited by Frank Karslake. This part contains, besides the 4177 auction records, a sketch of the libraries of Leicester, Eng., by Frank S. Herne, librarian and secretary of the Permanent Library, with illustrations; some interesting notes on Swinburne, with a portrait and a facsimile, and other so-called "colloquialisms." (50+310 p.)

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS has published a descriptive catalogue of the early editions of Shakespeare in the library of Eton College, compiled by Walter W. Greg. The collection of quartos includes twenty-two editions of eighteen plays bound in five volumes. Several are imperfect and others are described as poor copies. Ten, including two of the spurious plays, were printed before the appearance of the first folio in 1623. The first folio in the library is a small and inferior copy, with Ben Jonson's verses and title-page in facsimile. The third folio, (with 1664 titles,) is also inferior, but the second and fourth folios are described as fine copies. The bibliographical descriptions are full. At the end a "critical summary" gives a list of the plays, which shows their location in the four folios, and, where they appeared earlier in print, and notes the dates of the various editions in quarto.

CHARLES EVANS, 1045 Pratt Avenue, Rogers Park, Chicago, Ill., has just brought out the fifth volume of his "American Bibliography, 1639-1820." In this volume, which covers the period from 1774 to 1778, as Mr. Evans points out, "the literary record enters a period distinctively marked in character from what had been its prevailing characteristics up to [1774.] Heretofore the periods of growth into a national literature had been distinctively religious, and dominated by individuals, who impressed upon its character the stamp of their individuality, in the manner in which we are accustomed to measure the growth of all literatures by the dominant literary figure of its time. We now enter upon a period of a complete and radical change in its character, now distinctively political, in which the intellectual effort of the best minds in the Colonies sinks into the anonymity of hazardous political discussion, or into the work of governing bodies engaged in the common interests of a people in a cause for a vital principle of government." (15+455 p. 4°, cl., $15.)

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

WITH the June issue The Progress Magazine, published from the Rand-McNally Building in Chicago, leaves behind it the restrictive religious class field, and broadens out into the broader field of progress, opportunity and inspiration. With this issue the magazine enters the general popular magazine field, and hereafter will contain much matter of vital interest for both the man and woman who are really anxious to take advantage of their natural talents, abilities and opportunities.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

RICHARD BADGER, Boston, has in preparation a new novel of mystery by Anna Katherine Green, entitled "$3000."

GRANT RICHARDS, London, will publish this month a volume entitled "George Meredith in Anecdote and Criticism," upon which J. A. Hamerton has been at work for some six or seven years.

FRANK O. EVANS, of Raphael Tuck & Sons, expects to sail for Europe in July, and will remain on the other side until about August 28. His wife and daughter will accompany him on the trip.

GINN & COMPANY have secured the English and American publishing rights of Baroness von Suttner's "Memoiren" and will soon bring out an English edition. The translation has been made by Nathan Haskell Dole.

THE title of the new novel by James Lane Allen, which The Macmillan Company is to publish in the near future, is to be "The Bride of the Mistletoe." This will be the first work that has come from Mr. Allen's pen in six years.

BERNARD QUARITCH announces that Part I. is now ready of a carefully revised edition of the well-known "Chinese-English Dictionary," published in 1892 by Professor H. A. Giles. Many corrections have been made, and about twenty thousand entries have been added.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN Co. announce that one of their leading autumn books will be a new story by Kate Douglas Wiggin, entitled "Sussanna and Sue." A Shaker community forms a new setting for Mrs. Wiggin in this book, and her genuine interest in these people has resulted in her writing con amore.

NICOLAI SELDEN, on May 25, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment for publishing Tolstoy's "Thou Shalt Not Kill" and other political pamphlets. Count Tolstoy wrote to the court declaring that Selden was a passive offender, and inviting his own prosecution, but the magistrates refused to permit it.

MITCHELL KENNERLEY will publish shortly what is probably the last work of the English poet, John Davidson, who is supposed to have taken his life a couple of months ago. The volume is a collection of verses dealing with crowds, movements and wanderers, and is entitled "Fleet Street, and Other Poems."

B. & H. MEEHAN, Bath, Eng., are publishing—in view of the historical pageant to take place in that city July 19 to 24—a series of "Eight Episodes in the History of Bath." Six of these have been published up to the present. The complete set, illustrated from rare prints, will be obtainable post free for 30 cents.

LATER advices from England would seem to indicate that William De Morgan's new novel, "It Never Can Happen Again," which had been announced by Henry Holt & Company for this month, may not appear till July, or possibly September, as Mr. De Morgan, who is one of the most conscientious of workmen, is still working on it.

W. J. WATT & Co., 143 W. Twenty-seventh Street, New York, will publish on June 12 Houghton Townley's new novel, "The Scarlet Feather." "The Bishop's Emeralds," this author's recent book, was one of the most pronounced successes of 1908. Will Grefe as the illustrator has done his best in his own inimitable way to make the new book attractive.

THE ARTHUR H. CLARK COMPANY, Cleveland, O., are preparing for publication this fall the "Documentary History of American Industrial Society," upon which the American Bureau of Industrial Research and the Carnegie Institution of Washington have been engaged for a number of years. The work is one of great importance and the only one covering this field.

D. APPLETON & COMPANY have recently brought out a new edition of "David Harum." One hesitates to say just what number is attached to this edition, but it is a matter of record that many more than one million one hundred thousand copies have been sold since its publication in 1898. Who dares say in the face of this testimony that a really good book is never a "best seller"?

H. M. CALDWELL COMPANY announce a series entitled The New Philosophy of Life Series, the first volume of which is "The Real God," by the Rev. J. Herman Randall, of New York. The volume contains two essays, "The Universal Mind" and "The Divinity of Man," the former teaching that God is within us, the latter that the diviner self within us waits only for recognition to reveal its powers.

THE CASSELL COMPANY have just ready an interesting and timely work in Walter Hibbert's "Popular Electricity," with about 200 illustrations in the text. The work is brought up to the latest moment as regards wireless telegraphy, wireless telephony, electricity as applied to automobiles, the newest forms of incandescent lamps, tantalum lamps and osram lamps, Roentgen rays, and radium in its electrical aspect.

THE COCHRANE PUBLISHING COMPANY will bring out shortly a work on Labrador, entitled "Where the Fishers Go," by the Rev. P. W. Browne; "Pet Marjorie and Sir Walter Scott," by Kate Wiley, of Galveston, Tex., who took a $200 prize in the Seton Craft Company's story contest; "Electricity Explained," by J. Calvin S. Tompkins; "Idylls of the King," by Rev. Walter Spence, and "In the Shadow of the Peaks," by Stata B. Couch.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. have just issued a two-volume work on South America by Chase S. Osborne, entitled "The Andean Land," which describes all of the countries and colonies of South America, and gives detailed information for tourists and for the American exporter. His work contains a mine of historical information, some of it never before available in the English language, made very serviceable by means of maps, indexes and sixty illustrations.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY, Akron, O., have just ready a story entitled "Mary of Magdala," by Mrs. Roberson, who was encouraged to write the book by Theodore Roosevelt, and furnished with the theme by Dr. Robert Stuart MacArthur of the Fifty-seventh Street Calvary Baptist Church, New York City, who, after reading the ms., said: "The conceptions are vigorous, the descriptions of characters strong, vivid, attractive, and the religious spirit which permeates it is as commendable as it is conspicuous."

STURGIS & WALTON COMPANY, New York City, have just ready a revised edition of J. J. Williamson's "Mosby's Rangers," an edition of Bulwer-Lytton's "Lost Tales of Miletus," an edition of Waterton's "Wanderings in South America," first published in 1825, with sixteen illustrations in color, by Charles Livingston Bull; and a serviceable edition of the older English dramatists, to be known as The Swan Dramatists, of which the first two volumes are devoted to Marlowe's "The Tragical History of Doctor Faustus" and Webster's "The Duchess of Malfi."

GEORGE W. JACOBS & COMPANY have in preparation Grimm's and Andersen's fairy tales, "Robinson Crusoe" and the "Arabian Nights," rendered in easy French by Miss Kathleen Fitzgerald and illustrated by Gilbert James; a volume entitled "Enchanters of Men," by Ethel Colburn Mayne, embodying twenty-four studies of fascinating women; a handsome illustrated account of "The Tower of London," by Charles G. Harper, author of "Rural Nooks 'Round London;" also, a little volume on the Cambridge Colleges," by R. Brimley Johnson, containing historical and descriptive material, and another on "Canterbury Cathedral," by T. Francis Bumpus.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have made arrangements to bring out in this country an edition of a book on "Dog Breaking," by General W. N. Hutchinson, which contains much useful and authoritative information on the training and breaking-in of dogs as well as many interesting shooting anecdotes. Another importation is Bransby Williams's "An Actor's Story," the autobiography of the well-known English actor who excels in the portrayal of Dickens's characters. The volume contains the author's impressions of America, stories of the stage and reminiscences of well-known men and women of his profession. The illustrations consist of pictures of the author in his best roles.

THE JOHNS HOPKINS PRESS, Baltimore, Md., have published, in two volumes, "The Hague Peace Conference of 1899 and 1907," by the Hon. James Brown Scott, solicitor for the Department of State and Technical Delegate to the Second Conference. These two substantial volumes, of which the first contains the conferences and the second the documents, furnish the most complete account of the conferences which has appeared in English, and will undoubtedly be accepted as the definitive account of the work of those two great gatherings. The fact that the author was the Technical Delegate of the United States to the Second Conference and played a conspicuous part in its deliberations adds to the authoritative value of the treatise.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS announces a new edition of Spencer's works in three handsome library volumes, printed in Fell type. "The Faery Queene," which has been edited by J. C. Smith, will be ready before long; it fills two volumes, and is a reprint of the 1596 edition, collated with other early editions. The third volume, containing Spencer's other work, is being edited by Dr. de Selincourt, Professor of English Literature at Birmingham University. The Oxford University Press also announces for publication very shortly "The Englishman in Italy: being a collection of verses written by some of those who have loved Italy," arranged by G. H. Wollaston. It is uniform in appearance with the Oxford books of English and French verse.

THE LIFE PUBLISHING COMPANY have just published "The Diary of a District Messenger," by James S. Metcalfe; also, "A Little Bird Told Me," by Walt Kuhn, a reproduction in book form of the laughable pictures of talking birds and their conversations, which have been such a popular feature in recent issues of Life. They will publish shortly a volume entitled "Men, Women and Mirth." Like its companion volumes, "The Social Comedy" and "The Comedy of Life," it is made up of the more important large drawings from Life, reprinted on heavy coated paper and handsomely bound. These three volumes cover something more than a decade of American social life, and are a sort of pictorial history of manners and costumes of the period as recorded by the best draughtsmen and artists.

To those who are interested in Napoleon's love for the Empress Josephine and her love for him, "The Love Affairs of Napoleon," published May 28, by John Lane Company, should contain important material. According to M. Turquan, Napoleon's subsequent conduct might have been very different had it not been for his wife's behavior at Malmaison. First love is, after all, the strongest. M. Turquan's book belongs to that class which is so useful in throwing sidelights on the characters of history and proving to us that great men, though they may be as taciturn as Napoleon usually appeared, are really human. To many of us it will be hard to believe that the young Corsican artillery officer ever composed the verses which M. Turquan quotes as written in honor of the singer, Madame de Saint Huberti.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have just ready "Michael Thwaites's Wife," a new story by Miriam Michelson, the clever author of "The Bishop's Carriage," who has now written a story of twin sisters, one "the good one," the other one, whose face is drawn by C. Coles Phillips, naturally suggests "trust her not";

"Ezekiel Says," in which Lucy Pratt has employed her excellent version of negro dialect to tell the story of a negro waif which Frederick Dow Steele has illustrated, and which is dedicated to all good friends of Hampton Institute; "Mike Flannery On Duty and Off," three stories of Mike who worked for Western express companies and lived in a special Western boarding house, created by Ellis Parker Butler, author of "Pigs Is Pigs," who has here the benefit of illustrations by Gustavus C. Widney; also, "The Naulakha" in their pretty pocket edition of Kipling.

THE JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY have just brought out Max Pemberton's new story, "The Show Girl," which has already caught the fancy of British readers, and according to the London dispatches stood at the head of the "best sellers" in April. Dealing with the adventures of a young Englishman in Paris and his attachment for a young theatrical person, the show girl of the title, the interest of the tale is sustained. They have also just ready a volume of reminiscences of the war between the States, by Captain James M. Wells, of Chicago, entitled "With Touch of Elbow." Captain Wells was one of the Federal prisoners of war who made a sensational escape from Libbey Prison in Richmond by tunneling under the walls of the building, and his narrative of that and other incidents of the great conflict are from personal knowledge and experience. The volume is illustrated with portraits and views.

AMERICANS visiting London, according to the London correspondent of the New York Times, "will find much useful information in a new publication issued by Simpkin, Marshall & Company, entitled 'To and Fro,' which shows 'how to go from anywhere to anywhere in London.' It aims at being to the traveler about London policeman, 'cabby' and railway man in one. In fact, it is a complete route directory. All you have to do if you wish to pass from any point to another—to reach any place of business, bank, hotel, or place of amusement—is to turn to certain simple references, and there you will find indicated the mode of conveyance which will leave you least walking to do, while bringing you nearest to your desired destination. Sir John Ottley, who presided at a luncheon given at the Savoy Hotel to celebrate the publication of 'To and Fro,' said its compiler had spent 27,000 hours, or twelve years of eight hours a day, in its preparation, and had dealt with some 50,200 routes."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have issued this week the volume "Darwin and Modern Science," edited by A. C. Seward and gotten up as a memorial for the centenary of Charles Darwin. The book consists of twenty-nine essays written in commemoration of the event, and of the fiftieth anniversary of the publication of "The Origin of Species." The book is edited for the Council of the Cambridge Philosophical Society and the Syndics of the University Press. They have also ready William P. Pickett's "The Negro Problem: Abraham Lincoln's Solution," advocating Lincoln's proposed solution by emigration; "No Refuge But the Truth," essays by Goldwin Smith; three new issues in the Green and Gold edition of Ariel Booklets; and six little books in Some Old Favorites in New Dress: Mrs. Prentiss's "Fred, Maria and Me," bought from the Scribners; Anna Fuller's "A Literary Courtship;" De Quincey's "Essays," "Rasselas;" Kinglake's "Eothen;" and Hazlitt's "Spirit of the Age."

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY have just ready a motor story entitled "The Black Flier," by Edith Macvane. The principal "character" of this story of rural England with an American hero and heroine, is an automobile. The Black Flier first appears in a rescue, when the reluctant bridegroom is saved in his wedding garments by the fascinating young person who drives the motor. Special interest is attached to the next volume in this firm's series of Present Day Primers. "The Conquest of the Air: The Advent of Aerial Navigation," is the new addition, and it is by Professor A. Lawrence Rotch of Harvard University, Director of the Blue Hill Meteorological Observatory, as well as author of "Scudding the Ocean of Air," and other scientific books. In brief, authoritative, yet intimate language, Professor Rotch discusses the whole subject and tells the history of aerial navigation down to the achievements of the Wright brothers and the French, German, and English aviators. The little book is adequately illustrated.

THE PENN PUBLISHING COMPANY have in preparation a series of The Family Books, which is to provide a complete homemaker's library, solving so far as possible the many problems of comfort, beauty, and health which every family faces in trying to adapt the home to the needs of the individual members. The books to be brought out this year sufficiently indicate the scope and character of the series. Each will aim to be accurate and thoroughly modern, each covering its own field. The first is to be devoted to "The Care of the Child," and will be the work of Mrs. Burton Chance of Philadelphia. This will be followed by "The Family Health," by a well-known family doctor of Philadelphia. They will add to their excellent list of juveniles the following new titles: "Betty Wales & Co.," the sixth in the series bearing the name of the heroine; "An Annapolis Second Classman," the third of a series; "A United States Midshipman in China," the second volume of a set; Hare's "A Junior in the Line," a third volume; and "The School Team in Camp," a sequel to a successful book of last year, "On the School Team."

B. W. DODGE & COMPANY have just brought out a book entitled "Are the Dead Alive?" by Fremont Rider. The book is founded on a series of articles that ran during the winter months in The Delineator, and comprises a compendious review of recent progress in psychical research. It contains many photographs, some of them never published before, illustrating various phases of psychic phenomena. A special feature of the book is the series of statements of personal belief, in reply to the question asked in the title, secured for this work from such writers and investigators as Sir Oliver Lodge, Professor William James, Dr. Cesar Lombroso, Count Tolstoy, Professor Charles Richet, Dr. Maxwell, and numerous others. They have in preparation a complete collected edition of Zola's works, to include all his works of fiction and his voluminous critical and dramatic work, much of which is unknown to English readers. The exact form in which the set will appear has not yet been decided upon. About twenty-five volumes of the fiction will probably be brought out first. Each volume will be edited and prefaced by a scholar or critic of note.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just brought out a volume on "Calvin and the Reformation," comprising the following four studies: "Calvin, an Epigone of the Middle Ages, or an Initiator of Modern Times," by Professor E. Doumergue, Dean of the Theological Faculty of Montauban, France, translated by the Rev. J. H. Dulles; "Calvin and Common Grace," by Dr. Herman Bavinck, Professor in the Free University of Amsterdam, Holland, translated by Professor G. Vos, D.D.; "The Reformation and the Natural Law," by L. A. Lang, Privat-Dozent in the University of Halle, translated by J. Gresham Machen, and "Calvin's Doctrine of the Knowledge of God," by Professor B. B. Warfield, Professor in Princeton Theological Seminary. They have also ready "From Darkness to Light," by Mary Helm, a study showing the processes of the evolution through which the race has passed from an African savage to a Christian citizen of America. It is another form of the old questions of education and evangelization, labor and capital, poverty and crime that are clamoring for answer all over the world.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just brought out "The History of the City of New York," by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer, which represents the fruits of years of research in the history of the city in the seventeenth century—the most thorough and exhaustive study that has yet been made of a most important phase of the colonization of the Atlantic seaboard; "Selections from Early American Writers," by Professor W. B. Cairns of the University of Wisconsin, a compilation of unusual value inasmuch as it covers a literature not easily accessible; a new edition, two volumes in one, of "Picture Study in Elementary Schools," by L. L. W. Wilson; also, Irving's "Tales of a Traveller," in their series of Pocket Classics. They have nearly ready William Allen White's new novel, "A Certain Rich Man." The scenes and characters and plot are purely American—the first are in the Kansas wheat fields; the second are typical Middle Westerners, the "certain" man being a self-made, domineering captain of industry, and the last has to do with the conflict of labor and capital. A kindly, sympathetic humor plays throughout the book and softens the rugged outlines of the chief character—he can hardly be called the hero.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just issued "The Lady Without Jewels," by Arthur Goodrich, with full-page illustrations by Arthur Goodrich. The hero is a young man who has disagreed with his father over his business career, and starts off to Germany to contest for the contract for the Rigi Bridge. On the ocean trip he meets two girls who greatly influence his career. The house has almost ready a new book by Robert W. Chambers, with illustrations by A. B. Wenzell, who helped the sale of "The Fighting Chance" so much, but the title is not yet made public. Joseph H. Sears, president of D. Appleton & Co., arrived last Saturday on the Kaiserin Auguste-Victoria from an eight weeks' trip to Europe. He has secured a number of English books for fall publication, including a novel by Maarten Maartens and one by W. B. Maxwell. They are about to bring out a novel by James Edmund Dunning, entitled "The Master Builders." It is described as a novel of American manners and adventure, the main theme of which is concerned "with the character of a rather remarkable woman, while the background of the novel deals with an exciting episode in the development of the navy of the United States." Another work of fiction, which will be published probably at the same time with Mr. Dunning's novel, is a story by Roy Norton, author of "The Vanishing Fleets," etc., called "The Toll of the Sea." The scene for this story is somewhat on the ultra-scientific Jules Verne order, and involves various cataclysmic disturbances on the Pacific coast of the American continent, and a manifestation of magnetic power by a mysterious remnant of the Aztec race. This magnetic power, say the publishers of the book, is suggestive of an invention of the German naval engineer Holman, as described in a dispatch from Berlin on the 1st of May, by means of which the destruction of an enemy's fleet is insured.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have just issued "The Runaway Place," by Walter P. Eaton, former dramatic critic of the N. Y. Sun, and Elise M. Underhill, a bewitching idyl of a man out of work and a "mysterious maid from somewhere" who meet in Central Park, New York City, ("The Runaway Place,") and spend their days among its natural beauties and the treasures of its museums and think and wish aloud about all things; "Less Than Kin," by Alice Duer Miller, the author of "A Modern Obstacle," who here presents the welcoming of a supposed "prodigal son," newly returned from South America to an exclusive New York family, all strangers to him; "The Long Gallery," by Eva Lathbury, a romance dominated by dead ancestors whose pictures hang in the Long Gallery of Southern Court in England; and "Homespun," a humorous story of New England, by Lottie Blair Parker, whose plays "Way Down East," and "Under Southern Skies," appealed so strongly to the American public. The house has also almost ready "Melchisedec," by Ramsay Benson, whose "Lords of Lands" is in its second printing. The hero takes his name from the mysterious wanderer told of in Paul's Epistle to the Hebrews, who in this instance is an American with a large infusion of Indian blood who is a good deal of a mystic and feels he has a religious mission, but whose story is full of warm human interest. Also forthcoming immediately are Professor M. Johnston's "The French Revolution: a Short Story," an edition of the same author's "Napoleon," which they take over from A. S. Barnes & Co., as it really forms a sequel to the newer book; and a translation of "The German Drama of the XIXth Century," by Georg Witkowski, which has been a brilliant success in the old world, where this scholarly estimate of the German drama, one of the greatest glories of contemporary literature, is fittingly appreciated.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

NOW COMPLETE

State Publications

Just Completed in the Publication of

PART IV., COMPRISING SOUTHERN STATES

Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas

Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER

Embracing provisional check-lists of the official publications of the above-named States from their organization. While the difficulties of compiling a bibliography of this sort at the present time make absolute completeness impossible, every effort has been made to obtain accuracy to the extent covered, by means of the coöperation in most States of the State Librarians, State University Librarians, or officials of State Historical Societies.

The work now complete (1031 pages) will be furnished at $10.00 in four paper bound parts, or at $12.00 in half morocco, A. L. A. binding. Subscriptions will be received only for the whole work

 *But 500 copies have been printed and there are no plates.
Only 112 copies remain unsubscribed*

The attention of State Libraries, of the central public libraries, and of foreign libraries, is especially called to this bibliography, but it is also important to that larger number of libraries which cannot undertake to collect the State publications even of their own State and yet should be able to inform students and inquirers as to what is to be found in the publications of their own State and of other States. What New York and Massachusetts are doing in forestry for instance, is of importance in all States and to foreign students of the subject.

The Seven Who Were Hanged

By LEONID ANDREYEV

What the Reviewers say:

"Andreyev is greater than Poe—greater for his truth if not for his art."

—St. Louis Mirror.

"It is by reason of its art even more real, more horrifying, more impressive than any other Russian fiction translated in a long time. Under the crystal simplicity of Andreyev's style each spirit reveals itself, stripped of its bodily covering, in its inmost truth."—New York Times.

"For those interested in the cry of the oppressed, it will be like a call to battle."

—Philadelphia Item.

"It is a painful narrative, and yet it has a curious note of reality, of convincingness that we cannot resist."—Rochester Post Express.

"Grewsome, because it is fearfully real. But it is compelling for the same reason."—New York World.

"You rise from the book with a shudder—which is a tribute to its power—and with the firm conviction that capital punishment is a crime—another tribute to its author's genius."—Kentucky Post.

"It is not a mere morbid probing into the abnormal and horrible. It has its mission. It is a grim and terrible picture, and it is painted with tremendous art—the art of a Doré."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

12mo. cloth, 190 pages, with cover inlay and frontispiece. $1.00

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY OFFICE

The Publishers' Weekly

Recognized as the representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States. Contains full weekly record of American publications, with monthly indexes, cumulated quarterly, news of interest concerning the book trade, lists of "Books Wanted," (an advertising feature which each subscriber can use without charge to the extent of 100 lines per year,) etc., etc. Subscription, $4.00 a year; to foreign countries, $5.00 a year.

The Annual American Catalog, 1908

In two parts: A short-title index to all the book publications of the year and a full-title index, with brief annotation of the leading books of 1908. (Ready March, 1909.) 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

The American Catalog, 1905-1907

Vol. I containing in one alphabet an index to all books published during 1905-06-07; under author, title, subject and series entries. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II containing the full-title Weekly Record material of The Publishers' Weekly for the same years, in a separate alphabet for each year. 8vo, half morocco, $6.00.

The American Catalog, 1900-1905

Vol. I contains a five-year cumulation, Jan. 1, 1900-Jan. 1, 1905, giving in one alphabet, by author, title and subject, information of the books issued during the years covered by this period. It also contains a directory of over 3800 publishers, with street addresses. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II or Supplementary volume gives the full-title entries with annotations printed in the Weekly Record of The Publishers' Weekly, cumulated into an alphabet for each year, i.e., into five alphabets 1900, 01, 02, 03, 04. This is planned to answer the demand of such libraries, bookdealers, and others as want the full material of The Publishers' Weekly bibliographical system in available shape. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50. The set of two, $15.

Of the previous series of THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE, quarto size, the earlier volumes are out of print. We have remaining a few copies of the volumes 1890-95 and 1895-1900, bound in half morocco, $15.00 each.

The Publishers' Trade List Annual

Contains the latest catalogues of upward of 200 American publishers, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names, with smaller lists, fully indexed, at the end of the volume, indispensable to every one who has any interest in the sale or purchase of books. Large 8vo, cloth, $2.00.

Index to the Publishers' Trade List Annual, 1902, out of print.

The Supplementary Index, 1903-1904, 500 pages, 8vo, cloth, with thumb index, $3.00. The alphabet in this volume is supplementary to the original Index of 1902.

The Library Journal

Chiefly devoted to library economy and bibliography. Established in 1876. Published monthly. Subscription $4.00 a year, postpaid; single numbers, 35 cents. Price to Europe or other countries in the Union, 16s. a year; single numbers, 1s. 6d.

The Annual Library Index

Including Periodicals, American and English; Essays, Book-Chapters, etc., Bibliographies, Necrology, Index to Dates of Principal Events, and a Directory of Libraries. Edited, with the cooperation of members of the American Library Association and of The Library Journal staff, by W. I. FLETCHER. (Published annually.) The volume covering 1908, $5.00; all prior volumes, $3.50 each.

The American Educational List

Contains a price-list of the text-books in use in the United States, arranged alphabetically by author's or editor's name, and a detailed subject-index, referring from each specific subject to authors of books on that subject. (Published annually.) 8vo, leatherette, 50 cents.

English Catalogue of Books (Annual)

Containing a complete list of all the books published in Great Britain and Ireland in the calendar year, with index to subjects. 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

Directory of Publishers

Contains names and addresses of 3789 firms and individuals who issued books in the U. S. from Jan. 1, 1905, to Dec. 31, 1907. (Reprinted from The American Catalog.) 8vo, leatherette, red edges, $1.00.

The Profession of Bookselling

A handbook of practical hints for the apprentice and bookseller. By A. GROWELL, managing editor of The Publishers' Weekly, author of "A Bookseller's Library," "Three Centuries of English-Booktrade Bibliography," etc. Parts 1 and 2. 8vo, boards, each $2.00. (Concluding part in preparation.)

Publications of Societies

A provisional list of the publications of American scientific, literary and other societies, from their organization. Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER. Schedules nearly 1000 societies issuing publications, and gives title-entries of all their publications, as far as data could be obtained from the societies and from libraries. 8vo, paper, $2.50.
